Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—In a conversation at army headquarters to day, Grant announced his intention to nominate Gen. Schofield as Secretary of War, but thought it probable he would decline and return to his position in the army, whereupon he would nominate a civilian for the office. He further remarked that he was opposed to appointing officers of the army and navy to civil offices, and should therefore have a civilian at the head of each department. This statement comes from members of Congress who were present.

Prominent friends of Grant propose to erect an equestrian statue on the hill south of the portico of the Treasury. The model is to be executed in Boston. The artist received the order to day. The material of the statue will be of the cannon captured by Grant.

Applications for office under the next Administration pour in at headquarters. No attention is paid to any of them.

The Difficulty with Paraguay.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Bliss and Masterman publish a statement denying the charge of complicity against Lopez. They detail the sufferings while imprisoned, showing the most barbarous treatment, and say that Washburn did all in his power in their behalf. They condemn Admiral Davis for not demanding an apology instead of receiving them as prisoners.

Heavy Snow Storm

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—A heavy snow storm prevailed yesterday and last night. The mail service is interrupted east.

Boiler Explosion—Loss of Life

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 23.—A boiler in a sawmill in this city exploded this afternoon with great violence. One man was instantly killed, one dangerously wounded and four others severely.

West Indies.

HAVANA, Feb 23.—Advices from St Domingo represent that country as greatly agitated by revolutionary pronunciamentos. The rebels are threatening captures which would give them an open seaport.

General Dulce has issued a proclamation to the volunteers declaring that he is about to commence a vigorous campaign against the rebels. He advises the volunteers to remain quiet and obey their superior officers. The citizens are greatly alarmed, and intense excitement prevails but it was partially subsided in the evening. The officers advise the volunteers to abstain from violent measures, but their influence is not strong. Only the resolute conduct of General Dulce has prevented the commission of disgraceful acts.

The insurgents defeated the regular troops at Magajuqua and captured the town. Many engagements had occurred in the vicinity of Trinidad with varying results.

A dispatch from Spain announces the organization of 3,000 Catata volunteers for service in Cuba.

NEWS. The city is quiet and the volunteers are guarding the streets as usual. The agitation of the preceding days has abated.

La Crone publishes an account of the meeting in the Consul department. The meeting protested against the outcry and take away the property of the Spanish. La Crone adds: It is necessary to indulge in illusions as to the state of affairs at the interior. The condition of the insurrection will not be worse. One thousand five hundred insurgents entered Lares and burned the houses of the police headquarters, seized the guns, munitions and equipments of the civil guard and carried off all the forces they could find at Santa and Fajardo. The Governor was concentrating all the males over 15. Segua Grandes is declared in a state of siege. A rebel force of four hundred is operating in that jurisdiction. Several plantations were last waste and the buildings destroyed. The rebels are in the vicinity of Sagua. Sugar has further advanced.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—In a conversation at army headquarters to day, Grant announced his intention to nominate Gen. Schofield as Secretary of War, but thought it probable he would decline and return to his position in the army, whereupon he would nominate a civilian for the office. He further remarked that he was opposed to appointing officers of the army and navy to civil offices, and should therefore have a civilian at the head of each department. This statement comes from members of Congress who were present.

Prominent friends of Grant propose to erect an equestrian statue on the hill south of the portico of the Treasury. The model is to be executed in Boston. The artist received the order to day. The material of the statue will be of the cannon captured by Grant.

Applications for office under the next Administration pour in at headquarters. No attention is paid to any of them.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Bliss and Masterman publish a statement denying the charge of complicity against Lopez. They detail the sufferings while imprisoned, showing the most barbarous treatment, and say that Washburn did all in his power in their behalf. They condemn Admiral Davis for not demanding an apology instead of receiving them as prisoners.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—A heavy snow storm prevailed yesterday and last night. The mail service is interrupted east.

General Dulce has issued a proclamation to the volunteers declaring that he is about to commence a vigorous campaign against the rebels. He advises the volunteers to remain quiet and obey their superior officers. The citizens are greatly alarmed, and intense excitement prevails but it was partially subsided in the evening. The officers advise the volunteers to abstain from violent measures, but their influence is not strong. Only the resolute conduct of General Dulce has prevented the commission of disgraceful acts.

The insurgents defeated the regular troops at Magajuqua and captured the town. Many engagements had occurred in the vicinity of Trinidad with varying results.

La Crone publishes an account of the meeting in the Consul department. The meeting protested against the outcry and take away the property of the Spanish. La Crone adds: It is necessary to indulge in illusions as to the state of affairs at the interior. The condition of the insurrection will not be worse. One thousand five hundred insurgents entered Lares and burned the houses of the police headquarters, seized the guns, munitions and equipments of the civil guard and carried off all the forces they could find at Santa and Fajardo. The Governor was concentrating all the males over 15. Segua Grandes is declared in a state of siege. A rebel force of four hundred is operating in that jurisdiction. Several plantations were last waste and the buildings destroyed. The rebels are in the vicinity of Sagua. Sugar has further advanced.

The bill to supply the deficiencies of the appropriations for Indian treaty stipulations passed.

The bill authorizing the Western Union Telegraph Company to import cable free of duty, passed. The bill to amend the judicial system was taken up, and after some discussion, passed as reported from the committee.

Wilson, from the military committee, reported a bill continuing the educational and collection departments of the Freedman's Bureau and certain freedmen's hospitals, also, the bill to repeal the act fixing the headquarters of the General of the Army at Washington, and requiring all military orders of the President to be issued through him, etc.

Patterson, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported favorable on the resolution declaring that the neutrality law ought not to be held to forbid the sale or charter of vessels to foreign Governments at peace with the United States, although such vessels be prepared for war, provided such sale is a bonafide commercial transaction, with no intention on the part of the seller to participate in any belligerent act.

Morrill, from the Committee on Appropriations reported the army appropriation bill with amendments.

Trumbull moved to take up the bill to punish holding office in violation of the fourteenth article

Bon-Bons.

"Mother," said a little poet of four summers, "listen to the trees making music for the leaves to dance by."

A little Boston school girl, recently requested to explain how Congress is divided, announced the confident triumph, "Civilized, uncivilized, and savage!"

Said a youngster in high glee, displaying a purchase to a bosom friend on the sidewalk: "Two cocoanuts for ten cents! that'll make me sick to-morrow, and I won't have to go to school."

A lecturer lately, when talking of the first settlers of Virginia, and of its peculiar history to the present time, facetiously remarked at the close of his address, that the last settler in Virginia was Gen. Grant.

It is undeniable that in America it takes three to make a pair: he, she, and a hired girl. Had Adam been a model husband, there would have been a hired girl in Paradise to look after little Abel and "raise Cain."

"What have you done with your doll, Fanny?" "Took it up, papa. Going to keep it for my little gel, when I get big just like mamma." "Ah! but suppose you have none?" "Never mind. I'll give it to my man's child."

"Papa," said Tommy, the other day, "Is it a sin to change one's mind?" "Well, no, my boy; why do you ask?" "Oh, you know," replied the five year old, "I was to be a doctor." "Oh yes, I remember," said the father, "what then?" "Well, if you please, I think now that I'd rather be a candy store."

AN OLD ALMANAC.—The Boston Journal says.

"A Bridgewater correspondent writes us, stating that he has in his possession an almanac bearing the title of "News from the Stars," and "printed by Richard Pierce at the London Coffee House in Boston, 1691." It is somewhat in the form of the diaries now in use, with some fifty pages of blank leaves for memoranda. It was the property of William Pratt of Dorchester, who was one of the church organized at that place, of which Rev. Mr. Lord was pastor, "for the purpose of carrying the gospel ordinances to South Carolina." It contains a minute memorandum of the departure of that colony, and an account of the voyage of the "Brigentine Friendship of Boston, Cap. Hill" to that benighted region. It is in perfect preservation, and will outwear one of the modern diaries now, though one hundred and seventy-eight years old. Was this the first almanac printed in this country?

MRS. GRANT'S SHOEMAKER.—Mrs Grant, by the verdict of all the ladies, is the daintiest-footed lady in the city—perhaps in the nation. I was passing a shoe store in Georgetown—Vermilya's was the place—and seeing a great throng of ladies, I entered to speak to an acquaintance.

"Is it opening-day here?"

"Oh! no. This is Mrs. Grant's shoemaker."

"And has she an extraordinary shoe?"

"Here it is. Look at it!"

A tiny little shoe, the size one-and-a-half, was placed in my hand.

"Good gracious!"

"Her little daughter's is quite as large. She patronizes this place, and here, therefore, the entire patronage of Washington comes!"

"Driving a mile and a half to see if by getting shoes of Mrs. Grant's shoemaker they cannot buy as presentable feet! Oh! naughty world!"—Washington correspondence Chicago Tribune.

The Norfolk (Va.) Journal, referring to the forthcoming administration, says:

"General Grant has a great future before him—and he knows it. His administration will come upon the stage as the last echoes of the great strife are dying away, and his object will be to reunite us again, so that it may be said of him that his administration had healed the wounds of the country and left it a Union in feeling as well as in name. All the energies of General Grant will be directed to this end, and both he and his friends will eagerly seize upon such means by which fraternal relations may be secured and prosperity rests to all of the country."

At one of the hotels in our city, the landlord said to a boarder, "See here, Mr. B——, the chambermaid found a hair-pin in your bed this morning and it will not answer!" "Well," said the boarder, "I found a long hair in the bed this morning, but it did not prove that you had a woman in it." The two looked at each other for about ten seconds, when they smiled and went on their way, no doubt, puzzling over the peculiarities of circumstantial evidence.

STOW FOUNDATION PAVEMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, January 18, 1869.

Hon. Frank McCoppin, Mayor of San Francisco: Dear Sir:—You have now been nearly one year in the government as Supervisor and Mayor for the past nine years, during which time you must have given a great deal of attention to Street Paving, and I now ask it as a special favor to me, that you give briefly, in writing, the result of your observations relative to the several styles of street paving now in use in this city. By so doing you will much oblige

Your Obedient servant,
H. F. WILLIAMS,
President Stow Foundation Pavement Co.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 20th 1869.

Henry F. Williams, Esq., President of the S. F. P. Co. Dear Sir:—Your communication of yesterday requesting me to give in writing my opinion relative to the several kinds of street pavement now in use in this city, is before me, and in reply I would say, that at the time I became a municipal officer of this city, in 1850, and for many years thereafter, cobble-stone was the only kind of pavement used by the city in its corporate, and by individuals in their individual capacity. About five years ago the Nicolson pavement was introduced here by Mr. J. J. Robbins, assignee of the owner of the patent, and was received with much favor by our citizens. Very many portions of our streets are now paved with the Nicolson Pavement, so called—still later—that is to say, about two years ago, the "Stow Foundation Pavement" was introduced here by the inventor, and many of our public streets have since been paved with that pavement.

A sufficient length of time has, I think, elapsed, to enable any person who has given the subject any attention to form an intelligent opinion as to the merits of the respective wooden pavements—of course, I leave the cobble-stones out of view entirely—and I have come to the conclusion, that, in many respects, such as adaptability to our wants and in durability, the Stow is the superior pavement. But, were the two pavements equal in every other respect, the facility with which the Stow can be taken up and relaid, whenever it becomes necessary to do so place it for the purpose of laying down gas and water pipes, should, in my judgment, entitle it to preference and public favor.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
FRANK McCOPPIN,
Mayor of the City of San Francisco.

We, the undersigned, have carefully read the above letter from his Honor, Frank McCoppin, to H. F. Williams, Esq., upon the subject of street paving, and we fully indorse every word it contains.

No pay will be made for trips not performed, and if on behalf such omissions are not satisfactorily explained three times the pay of the trip may be deducted. For arrivals so far behind time as to be unaccompanied by depositing mails, and not sufficiently excused, one fourth of the compensation for the trip is subject to forfeiture. Fines will be imposed, unless the delinquency be satisfactorily explained, for neglecting to take the mail from or into a post office, or for refusing to be inspected, called for at such reasonable times as may be required by the postmaster, or for neglecting to carry the mail as frequently, as the contractor runs, or is commanded to do, when not otherwise forbidden. It is the oldest paper in the State, and its circulation and influence are greater than that of any other two papers combined. As a journal of enterprise in gathering the latest intelligence, and in giving it such name a larger amount and greater variety of reading matter it has no competitor. It is thoroughly identified with this city and State and neighboring Territories, where the number of its readers and its influence are constantly increasing.

An unflinching advocate of sound Union principles, it at the same time pays special attention not only to MATTERS OF GENERAL INTEREST, but to everything of moment to the great

MINING NEWS.—From the Walla Walla Statesman of the 19th, we clip the following: Frank Kenyon is reported to have sold his interest in the White Pine mines for $50,000..... A gentleman just down from Kootenai reports the new mines on Perry Creek as prospecting finely. Large numbers of miners who had wintered in the Hell Gate Valley, were pouring in and taking up claims. They report very little snow on the mountains and the traveling excellent. The new mines will furnish employment for several thousand men, and now is the time to secure claims..... From a private letter dated Humboldt Basin, Feb. 9th, we glean the following information in relation to their spring prospects for mining: "We are having a fair but prospect for a mining season than the last two years, the snow being about thirty inches deep on a level, and very wet. One of the boys said the other day that he filled a kettle full of snow, and after commencing to melt, was compelled to dip out several dipper fulls, to keep it from running over. Altogether, the boys are in better spirits than usual. If any of your friends think of coming up this way in the spring, I would recommend them to the following camps, where there is good diggings, and where they employ a large number of hands during the mining season and pay good wages: Humboldt Basin, Rye Valley, and Amelia or New Diggings, all of which are good camps. The proper route to travel to these mines is via Express Ranch, the fare from this point to the mines by stage being only $5. Considerable prospecting has been done within a circuit of from 20 to 30 M., and in several districts good prospects have been found. I have no doubt but that several new camps will be worked the coming season with good success."

[illegible] party the coming [illegible]. The sout[illegible]ast of Albany and other valleys in this section [illegible] makes the survey of the public lands in that section a necessity.

THEATRICAL.—Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Bates left here yesterday by the steamer Onativia for San Francisco, for the purpose of forming a company of first-class actors and actresses for the spring season at Odd Fellows Theater. It will be [illegible] to return by the [illegible] with all the people and stage properties necessary to the production in good style of a number of the best modern, sensational plays sent to give the Portland a season of theatrical [illegible] equal to the very best ever furnished on the Pacific coast. We believe that if anybody can do this Mr. and Mrs. Bates will do it if good will and [illegible] can do it. The [illegible] members of the [illegible] here.

[illegible] the last few days the hotels of this city have been filled to their utmost capacity with guests, [illegible]. We met a gentleman yesterday, [illegible] evening, who informed us that he was [illegible] lodging at any of the principal hotels [illegible] a bed at all he was compelled to go to one of the far up town houses, or as he expressed it, "out in the country." The sailing of the steamers [illegible] have doubtless thinned out the crowds considerably, though the hotels are yet certainly more crowded than ever before at this season of the year.

[illegible] WANTED.—A letter from Isaac Mollyneux, of [illegible]ville, [illegible]ving inquiries concerning Bennett H. [illegible], has been placed in our hands. It states that [illegible] a man; came to Portland in the fall of [illegible] A. M. Granite creek, Oregon, to receive medical [illegible] for an affection of the lungs; that he then [illegible] home that he should re[illegible] in Portland during the [illegible]. He owned shares or claims on Granite creek; but [illegible] at he might have to sell out and go to a warmer [illegible]. Any person having information of him should [illegible] the writer of the letter as above.

[illegible] ON THE WAY.—The bark Meldon, the fourth vessel in the line of Brockway, Baker & Co., from New York to Portland, sailed from New York on the 20th inst.....The San Francisco Commercial Herald of the 13th [illegible]s in the list of vessels spoken at sea, the bark Hattie C. F[illegible], the third vessel in the same line. She was [illegible] Dec. 16th, in latitude 3 north and longitude 26 west. Typsin Berry, of the Osymn, says the Bessie is a faster sailer and may be expected to arrive here in twenty days if she meets with no accident.

REAL ESTATE SALE.—Mr. A. B. Richardson, auctioneer, will offer for sale, at two o'clock to-day, at administrator's sale, some very valuable real estate. With the exception of one parcel, the lots and fractional lots are all in the old Raleigh's addition—the triangular piece of land lying between Stark and Washington streets, west of [illegible] A.M. No better chance for investment has been [illegible] of late in this city. Every foot of the parcels [illegible] desirable property.

[illegible]RAFFLE.—The raffle for one of Norman's [illegible], took place at the Cosmopolitan Saloon last [illegible], and the vehicle was won by Fred. Currier and Dr. Kellenberg, each throwing forty-two. We suppose now we shall soon witness some velocipedestrianistic performances wonderful to behold. The boys, however, will have to tame the critter without instruction, as there is no [illegible] rogue in the city.

[illegible] IN THE FIGURES.—On the 15th inst., we published a list of the suits begun in the U. S. District court against parties for violations of the revenue laws, in which the figures "$5,000" were set down against the names of Lucas & Grant, of Dayton. That sum has one cipher too many—the penalty sued for against Lucas & Grant is $500. We make the correction at the instance of the defendants.

AN EXTENDED TOUR.—Capt. Franklin, who arrived here by the Active from Victoria, took his departure by the [illegible] for San Francisco, whence he is going to Japan, China, Australia, and the Lord only knows where else among the Pacific Islands, and thence to some naval station on the western coast of Africa. He goes as civil commissioner of Her Majesty, but for what purpose, we have not learned.

PASSENGERS FOR VICTORIA.—The steamer Active sailed at half-past five o'clock last evening for Victoria and Puget Sound, with the following named passengers: F Drew, E A Wilson, J D Driver, G Smith, W H Wood, Mrs I. S Rodgers, H T Wood, I S Rodgers, Miss B Rodgers, Mrs King and child, George Handley, J W Freeman, William Wood and wife, P W Gillette, J R Adams, Chas Graham, [illegible] Whitney.

A HANDSOME VESSEL.—The bark Osmyn, of the New York and Portland line, which arrived here night before last, is one of the handsomest vessels seen at this port for a long time. Everything about her looks as bright as a new penny and her cabin is finished in style also as fine as the saloons of the steamships. Her general appearance is highly creditable to her master, Captain Berry.

LOST CHILD.—Something of an excitement was created yesterday morning by the discovery that a young child was missing. A darkey was sent out to ring a bell and a number of persons joined in the search. The child was found, however, an hour or two later in a distant part of the city—and thus a soul harrowing item was spoiled for us.

BIG CROWD ON THE WHARF.—At the sailing of the Continental yesterday there was an immense crowd on the wharf. It really seemed as though almost everybody in the city had a personal interest in somebody who was going away, and that everybody interested was on the wharf to see the ship off.

RUMORED DEATH.—There was a rumor here yesterday that Jo Taylor send from this city to the penitentiary, had died suddenly. The Journal of yesterday morning does not mention anything of the kind.

A MERRY TIME.—After the ball last evening the boys had a merry old time trying the velocipede. The novel of the aspirants for a practice hack is all needed in riding the rough sidewalks of this city.

FREIGHT FOR VICTORIA.—The [illegible] which left last evening for Victoria and Puget Sound ports, took one hundred and ten tons freight and twenty-one head of cattle.

SOCIABLE.—The monthly sociable of the ladies of the Unitarian Church will [illegible] this evening at the hall, corner Yamhill and Seventh streets.

JEWELRY LOST.—We hear that Miss Field of the Bates troupe has lost jewelry valued at about one hundred dollars, probably stolen.

AGAIN RUNNING.—We learn that the ferry at Milwaukie is again running.

NASBY

MR NASBY AND HIS FRIENDS CONSIDER THE QUESTION OF BREAD AND BUTTER—A NARROW ESCAPE.

POST OFFIS, CONFEDRIT X ROADS, (Which is in the State uv Kentucky,) Jan 13, 1869.

The question "what can I do with myself?" is not solved. My return from Noo York so signanominously, on foot, wuz a serious disappointment to my friends at the Corners. They felt when I left em that they hed fixed me for life, and their sorrer at my untimely return wuz genuine. Bas com er soon er he saw me enter his bar weary and foot sore, remarked with a profane ejaculation that I'd be his ruin yet.

I am a man uv ackshun. To wunst I called a meetin uv my friends to consider the situashun and to arrange for another vencher. I remarked to them that I hed not lost faith in Noo York; that it wus certain that that city wus my field. I proposed that another outfit should be furnished me, the same as before, and that I should have one more trial. But they unanimously decided, feelin that I hedn't sufficient control uv my appetite for a grocery keeper, and that investments in that direcshun would be a perpetual waste uv capital which the Corners could not afford.

Various methods uv makin a livin were rejected, but none met my approval. One wood reject this thing in San Francisco; another that in Alaska; and each wood swear that every one wuz the very thing. Their readiness to agree and the numerousness uv the miles the places wuz away, satisfied me that distance wus the main p'int with em.

That miserable wretch Joe Bigler, happened in at a moment when they wuz a discussin the feasibility uv a conductorship on a street railroad in Noo Orleans—ez if the directors uv the companies hedn't all got dissipated nephews to fill rich, responsible places—when he remarkt that the obtoosness uv humanity wuz one uv the wonders uv the nineteenth century.

"Make uv him," sed Josef, "a Dimekratic organ grinder, saw off his right leg, dress him in bloo, git him an instroument wich will play 'Dixie,' 'The Bonnie Bloo Flag,' and sich toons, and plant him on the sidewalks uv Louisville, Noo York, or any other Dimekratic city, and his forchoon is made."

"But why dress me in bloo? Why not in gray, if I play Confedrit toons."

"Innocence! Didn't the Dimocrisy always wear bloo, while they wuz whistlin Confedrit toons? Even in the North they don't object to a bloo coat, so that they know there's a Confedrit heart under it?"

"But," replied I, "I wuzn't a soljer—wich is, only ez a draftid man, and then only for a short time."

"That don't matter," remarked Josef, "no more wus the heft of the Dimocrisy. The bulk uv em wich served, served as drafted men. But that circumstance is in yoor favor. The regler organ grinder—them wich wuz volunteers, put onto a placard wich hangs onto their instroooments, words to this effect:

"Enlisted July—Shot thro the leg at Antietam."

"Yoo kin put onto yourn this proud inskription:

"'Drafted Sept. 5, 1863—desirted Sept. 30, '63—lost rite leg in an enkounter with Provost Marshals, March 10, 1863.'

"Sich a inscription would melt the heart uv every Dimekratic passer-by, and they'd fill your cigar box with doppers. Wich uv em cood resist such a appeal? Think ne wat a harvest yoo'd reap in Louisville when Breckinridge comes back home, and in Frankfort, when he is inoggerated Governor uv Kentucky! It's the dodge for yoo, Parson."

I thot the matter over a minit, and it pleased me. The life of an organ-grinder is by no means to be despised. It's a dreamy, poetical, contemplative sort uv eggsistence. Ez there ain't yo manyoeal labor in it beyond the mere turnin uv a crank, I am satisfied that it wood soot me. Then one sees so much uv life. Constantly before yoo is a ever changing panoramy—yoo see hoomanity in all its phases—and when nite comes how sweet the rest, how inspirin the likker, which yoo hev honestly earned by yoor manly exertions.

"Is it necessary that I shel hev a leg amputated?" askt I.

"Certainly," replied Josef.

"Then I decline!" sed I. "Aside from the pain I hev a reggard for them legs. They saved my life in all the skirmishes I was in doorin my breef term uv servis as a draftid man in '63. I will not part with one uv 'em."

"This is trifling with yoor feelins sir!" ejaculated Bascom. "Yoo hev the way open for an honest livin, and yoo refooze to walk ye into it. This cannot be permitted."

"It cannot be permitted!" ekkoed McPelter, Pennibacker and the rest uv 'em.

"Josef, hev yoo sufficient skill to amputate a limb?" asks Bascom.

"I hev," replied Joseph, "of you will furnish me a carvin knife and a hand saw. I've seen it done in confederit hospitals. Troo the victims didn't most allus survive. Ef yoo do stand it, Parson, think of the glorious life organ grindin is—of yoo die under it, console yoorself by thinkin how much organ grindin yoo'e escaped! Bring the knife and saw and somebody twist a handkercher about his leg!

And forthwith they cersed me, throwed me onto the bar and tied me there, and brot a dull knife and a hand-saw, and that cuss wood hev backt into my leg hed it not bin for Deekin Pogram.

"Joseph Bigler!" sed this more than saint, "trooly tell us, wat are the chances uv his survivin this operashun?"

"About one in a thousand, I shood say, and that's why I am so anxious to commence!" promptly replied Joseph, sharpenin the knife vishusly onto the sole uv his boot.

"Then let him go!" ejaculated the Deekin hastily, "let him up. He owes me thirty-seven dollars, with interest, since the second day he arrived in this place, which he borrowed. Ef he dies it's gone—ef he lives he may strike suthin that'll enable him to pay it."

"Slash away, Bigler!" remarkt Bascom vishously, "he owes me seven hundred dollars for drinks since he's been here, and ef he lives he'll double it in a year."

There wus an animated discussion, ez to whether Bigler shood go on or stay his eager hand. Fortunately I owed every one uv the by-standers, and wat wus more fortunit, the most of em wuz better fixed than Bascom. The haft uv my indebtedness to the others wuz for borrowed money, clothin, and sich things with a man kin get along without. Bascomb knows that so long ez I live I must hev his goods, money or no money, and hence his desire to see me either git lucrative employment or die.

But the majority wuz agin him—he yeelds, and I wuz saved. "Thank Heaven," I exclaimed, ez I riz, "thank Heaven for debt. Hed I bin less hefty on the burner I wood now be a cold corpse. I must git out of this ez soon ez possible.

Henry W Longfellow, George B. Cheever and Nathaniel Hawthorne graduated at Bowdoin College in the class of 1825, which numbered thirty-eight. Numbers one and two in rank in the class are quite unknown in the literary world. Longfellow ranked number four and Cheever number eight, while Hawthorne seems to have had no aspiration for college honors, and was so low down as not to be ranked at all.

Acquisition of Territory

The enlargement of our national boundaries has always been a popular idea in the United States. Every new acquisition of territory has met with some opposition but much has a popular instinct, which is otherwise called "manifest destiny," has always approved these projects of territorial aggrandizement. The individual desire for acquisition has continually manifested itself in the whole body politic, and has resulted in the expansion of our national domain at every opportunity which has been presented.

We began to purchase territory when the nation was in its infancy and since that time have bought all that has been offered. In 1803 Jefferson purchased Louisiana for $15,000,000. He admitted that he had no constitutional power to buy, and seemed to be greatly troubled thereat, nevertheless he suppressed his scruples for the Constitution and did buy the territory. Since then the Constitution has been repeatedly "violated" in the same way, and the country has not been at all alarmed about it. In buying Louisiana, we paid fifteen millions for a vast wilderness. Why? Because we could get it then and might never have another opportunity. We needed the sovereignty of that country to secure us the Mississippi and its mouths, and a portion of the Gulf shore. What would we sell it for now? Not for fifteen thousand millions of dollars.

Then came Florida for $5,000,000. A territory of lagoons, irredeemable everglades, and pestilential swamps, with alligators enough to fence it, as was said in those days. Then our debt was $91,000,000, and our annual expenses $13,000,000. Why did we buy it? Because we could get it, and the Florida peninsula, stretching down into the Gulf, and the narrow strip of Gulf shore, were necessary for maritime ports for the Gulf States and for national security—a greater peaceable protection than fortifications costing ten millions. What would we take for it now? Who can tell? How much money and how much life have we just now spent to keep Florida and Louisiana from leaving us?

Then the annexation of Texas was practically a purchase. We extended our sovereignty over it and paid $10,000,000. This carried us to the Rio Grande. We had thus all the north coast of the Gulf—about twenty degrees of longitude—and plenty of yellow fever. These three purchases were just about to go into other hands. We now see that they were cheap and necessary, and it would have been the height of folly to let the opportunity pass.

Then came California and New Mexico, for which we gave the expenses of the Mexican war and $15,000,000. They were bought as comparatively barren and impracticable regions—impracticable for agricultural production. This was twenty years ago—a mere speck of time in the life of a nation. Now what will we take for that acquisition—even with its earthquakes and Chinamen? No price would tempt us, although we now only begin to see the curtain lift and disclose the future agricultural prosperity coming through our Western regions, to say nothing of the mineral wealth that stretches from the Isthmus to the North Pole.

The next purchase is Alaska, the largest of all. This is a vast territory, extending to Behring's Straits and the Polar Seas—a region of ice and long winters—the region of the fur trade and seal and whale and cod fisheries. The state of party feeling and great personal animosities have some tendency to beclond the national interest in this purchase, and satire and ridicule, in pictures and words, have taken the place of statesmanlike views. Its southern boundary is 54 deg. 40 min.—in Mr. Polk's time, "54 40 or fight." It was seriously proposed then to go to war with Great Britain to maintain our right up to that line, which is the latitude of Londonderry and Belfast in Ireland. Glasgow and Edinburgh are still further north, and so are the great cities of Copenhagen and Moscow. St. Petersburg and the port of Cronstadt are several hundred miles further north. The whole of Sweden and Norway are above 54 deg. 40 min. Advices from Alaska already show the magic effect of our flag there in developing new activity and enterprise, cold as it is and foggy too. It is said to be almost as foggy as London and quite as cold as Quebec. The money is paid and controversy is ended, and as in the other cases, so in this, those who have opposed it most strenuously will doubtless be soon among the loudest of those who boast over the advantages of the purchase.

We therefore agree with the New York Times, that almost any project for enlarging the dominion of the United States by purchase is likely to be accepted by the people. Even if St. Thomas, the West Indian island which Denmark offers us at a great price, should be accepted, a majority of the nation would probably receive it with satisfaction. This principle or instinct of territorial acquisition, growing more or less out of individual desire of accumulation and a sort of belief in an "ocean-bound Republic," is prevalent in the country. In a political point of view it may be remarked that anti-territorial notions do not seem to be very favorable to the success of the party which adopts them.

The Nearness of Antiquity.

The Cincinnati Gazette calls attention to a fact which, though frequently noticed, is not generally apprehended, viz. The short chain of witnesses through which we gain our knowledge of even ancient events. To make its meaning clear the Gazette cites an example or two recorded in Chambers' Book of Days:

In 1844 there died in England, a man named Horrocks, at the age of 100. His father was born in 1657, during the protectorate of Oliver Cromwell. He married very late in life a second wife, who was the mother of the centenarian above named. A man now thirty-five years old might have conversed with the younger Horrocks, and learned from him what the latter's father, who lived to a great age and was remembered by his son, had told him about the plague and fire in London in 1665-66, the Titus Oates Plot, the revolution of 1688, &c. Thus only one witness would separate the young boy of 1844 from the contemporary of Charles I, James I. and William and Mary.

In 1851, Dr. Routh, an English University official, died in his hundredth year. He often told how he had conversed with a man who knew Addison at college, and thus the students of 1800 or 01 could have information through only two witnesses of the great essayist, who died in 1719. Of course, single links are rarely as those noted above. Still, allowing only thirty three years as the average of human life, a line of fifty or sixty witnesses would carry us to the birth of our Savior and over 1,000 more to the birth of Julius Cæsar.

It is rarely true that oral information is thus handed down, but in the careful records of the European governments, and of our older States, we are united to remote periods through far nearer connections than we are at first inclined to suppose.

It seems to be doubtful whether the two houses will agree during the present session on any constitutional amendment touching the suffrage. Only a week of the present session remains. The whole matter may therefore go over for the consideration of the next Congress.

Small Notes

During five months of the present fiscal year, since the whiskey tax was reduced, the amount of revenue collected from spirits is $15,029,278. Last year during the same period, while the tax was at the old rates, the amount collected was only $8 145,800. The reduction of the tax on the article has thus almost doubled the revenue.

The act of Congress taking away from the infamously corrupt Courts of the city of New York the power to naturalize aliens, is a good thing. During a few weeks prior to the late election a single Court, Judge McCunn's, issued thirty-five thousand naturalization certificates. They were issued by the ream, and peddled out as wanted.

The Democratic organs tell us that the Legislature will convene on the 4th March—that is we suppose Chapman will "convene" it. It is rumored that he has already gone to the Capital, hence we may expect soon to hear the slogan and pibroch calling all the clans together. Chapman knows enough of law to be aware that there is no legal impediment in the way of any man who wants to make himself ridiculous. It is supposed that not many of the Democratic members will assemble with Chapman. They have not his taste for facial adventure and don't care to make a "spectacle" of themselves.

The State of affairs in New York is thus set forth in the Evening Mail of that city. "At the present rate of our progress downward it will not be long before we reach the point where, politically speaking, society will dissolve into its original elements, and men, distrustful of the whole machinery of law and justice, will resume their natural rights as men and execute natural laws with little regard to formalities. Already responsible and leading journals of this city talk of 'vigilance committees' as the only remedy for judicial corruption. They undoubtedly express the deep convictions of thousands of earnest men."

An officer of the late volunteer army writes to General Garfield about Miss Sue Murphy. "When I happened to see the fact stated that the loyal lady hailed from Decatur (Alabama), I recognized an old acquaintance. It was the father of this tender bit of loyalty that I arrested and locked up in the strong room of the bank, for waving a secesh flag while our regiment was passing, and while I had the venerable skunk in solitary confinement, I had to stand a large amount of secesh eloquence from the rotund mother and the indignant daughter. But I kept the venerable gent in durance vile until he was washed out by the briny drops of the entire family."

The Herald copies an article from a Copperhead paper in which the remark is made that "it is not proposed by the Democracy to offer any opposition to Grant's inauguration." Now that's kind! But it is painful to see that the Democracy who have been so long threatening resistance and war, should suddenly become so submissive. What poltroonery! Marcus Coriolanus addressed such with the taunt, "ye shapes of men that have the souls of geese," etc. We entreat the Democracy for the sake of their reputation, to resist. Resist, by all means. We ask in all earnestness if the Herald, the Commercial and the Democracy of Santiam Forks are going to quietly allow Grant to be inaugurated?

In noticing the death of Col. Thomas M. Key, which took place at Cincinnati recently, the Gazette of that city remarks that he was with Gen. McClellan in confidential relations from the beginning of the war until that commander was finally superseded. To his tact and cool judgment and literary taste McClellan was greatly indebted for the good style in which his dispatches and communications for the public were generally written. Colonel Key was the writer of McClellan's famous letter of advice to Lincoln, after the retreat to the James river; a letter which was rather extraordinary under the circumstances, and which suggested the remark that as McClellan had failed as a military commander, he supposed he must have a genius for the Presidency.

A Washington dispatch of Feb. 3d states that Gens. Porter and Babcock, of General Grant's staff, have returned from their tour of inspection through the Southern States. They visited every military post in the country through which they traveled and will make a written report to Gen. Grant. They represent North Carolina as in the best condition, and next stands Alabama. The worst state of affairs exists in Georgia, and some legislation from Congress to secure the rights of the loyal people in that State will be recommended. They say the negroes were in the right in the Ogechee troubles and they should be protected. Notwithstanding the militia troubles in Arkansas that State is in a flourishing condition.

There is a common belief that the great increase in the prices of commodities during the last few years is owing mainly or entirely to the inflation of paper currency. The inflation has much to do with it, but less we believe than is generally supposed. By the great increase in the amount of gold and silver, compared with the amount of a few years ago, the purchasing power of specie has been diminished; and as the bulk of specie is continually increasing, it is impossible ever to return to the old prices. And why should we wish to? What is the benefit of low prices? When, a thousand years ago they sold cattle for a few shillings a head, were they any better off than we are to-day? On the contrary, the people were poor and barbarous then, compared with us. In this view, abundant money, high prices, are decided evidences of a prosperous state of society.

STATE ITEMS.

A meeting was called in Douglas county, to be held on the 24th inst, to take the preliminary steps to organize an agricultural society.

A correspondent of the Walla Walla Statesman says that the town of Pendleton, the county seat of Umatilla county, is improving rapidly. The only drawback is the inability to get lumber to build as fast as wanted. The foundation for a Court House has been commenced. A seminary building is also to be erected as soon as possible.

The New York Sun discusses the question whether it is profane to use the phrases, "a continental dam," "a tinker's damn," &c. That journal proceeds to show that the origin of these phrases was perfectly innocent—the former from "dam" that was inscribed on old Continental currency that had been counterfeited, from the Latin, damnatus, condemned and the latter from a little dam of loose earth which the tinker builds in which to puddle his solder. Hence, "not worth a continental dam," or "not worth a tinker's damn." When, however, damn, instead of "dam" is meant, it is not allowable for a gentleman to use these phrases.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 21.—About noon yesterday, the P. M. S. S. Co.'s steamer Prince was telegraphed 20 miles out. No sooner had the news been received than it spread with the rapidity of lightning among the Chinese population, who at once began to make their way to the wharf, and several hours before the arrival of the steamer the streets in that vicinity were crowded. Chief Crowley learning that large numbers of women were on board the steamer and trouble anticipated, the heads of different companies took precautionary measures. Custom house officers went on board to search the baggage, etc., while all the police officers were stationed at different places. After the baggage had been examined three hundred and thirty six women on board were taken from the steerage and landed on the wharf. The excitement of the Chinamen on the wharf rose to its highest pitch, requiring the united strength of the whole police force to prevent them getting hold of the women. When the women were landed they were placed in rows at the southern end of the wharf, where they were searched by the inspectors, and quantities of opium, tobacco and liquor, which they had smuggled, taken from them. After the search, all the hacks and wagons on the wharf were called into requisition, the women placed by the police officers in them, an officer seating himself on each wagon as they left the wharf, remaining with it until the load of human freight was delivered at the destination fixed by the companies. Many attempts were made by Chinamen to take off the women, while others were quarreling, and making threats against each other. Several attempts to create a fight were made, but was stopped by the police. At 7 o'clock P. M. the whole number of women had been safely taken to their quarters notwithstanding attempts made by the men to pull from the wagons not only the women, but the officers in charge of the wagons. The following arrests were made by the officers at the wharf: Ah Gin, who had concealed on his person a bar of iron one foot long, wrapped in clothes; Cloug, on whom were found concealed two large bowie knives; Ah Tin, also for carrying a concealed butcher knife, and also for assault and battery. At one time a fight occurred outside the gates between contending parties. Knives, pistols and iron bars came into use and one China man was wounded. His name was Ah Sue. His assailant's name was Ah Young; both were taken into custody, and weapons found concealed on their persons. The cases have been continued for trial in the police court. There was much excitement among Chinamen all night, and the police force in that part of the city was doubled.

Lieut. John F. Small, U. S. A., committed suicide yesterday afternoon in a house at the corner of Second and Mission streets, by saturating the counterpane of his bed with chloroform and covering his face with it. No reason can be assigned for the act. He had plenty of means and held an honorable position. He left two letters, one to his brother and the other to Dr. Belden, leaving him his watch and chain.

A movement is on foot, among some of the leading men of Chicago, headed by Lieut. Gov. Bross, who will be remembered as a member of the Colfax party which visited California in 1865, to invite the Governors of the several States and their staff officers to meet at Chicago on the 4th of July next at the formal opening of the Pacific Railroad. The invitation is to come in due form from the Governor of Illinois, and the freedom and hospitality of the city to be extended in due form. The staff of Governor Haight are somewhat exercised at the prospect of a free ride across the continent, and a free lunch at the expense of Chicago.

A gentleman connected with the California, Oregon and Mexico Steamship Co. was knocked down and robbed last Sunday night at the corner of Market and Second streets. Another man was stopped Monday night at 11 o'clock, corner of Folsom and Second streets, by two footpads, who demanded his money. He talked them out of it and escaped.

Authorities Cited Against A. H. Stephens and the "Oregon Herald."

The Herald of a late date has an article which exhibits an intense desire to show that when the National Constitution was formed the States "seceded" to it, and that the Government is therefore "a confederacy of States only." What object that paper has in view in pressing this matter at this time is not apparent, unless it wishes to show that the Union is only a league, and that as it was formed by the secession of the States it may be destroyed by secession. Since the war this has not been a very profitable subject for discussion. Nevertheless, as the Herald and its Democratic confrères throughout the State are so anxious to fight over again the contest which was settled by the war, we beg to submit for their consideration some documents which will show them exactly what sort of Government this is. Chief Justice Marshall of the United States Supreme Court, in delivering an opinion in the year 1819, in which the State of Maryland was a party, expounded this subject in such a way as will show the Herald precisely what the nature of this document is, and that this Union is a nation and not a league of States. Marshall said:

The counsel for the State of Maryland have deemed it of some importance, in the construction of the Constitution, to consider that instrument not as emanating from the people, but as the act of sovereign and independent States.

It would be difficult to sustain this proposition. The Convention which framed the Constitution was indeed elected by the State Legislatures. But the instrument when it came from their hands was a mere proposal, without obligation, or pretensions to it. It was reported to the then existing Congress of the United States, with a request that it might "be submitted to a Convention of Delegates, chosen in each State by the people thereof, under the recommendation of its Legislature for their assent and ratification." This mode of proceeding was adopted; and by the Convention, by Congress, and by the State Legislatures, the instrument was submitted to the people. They acted upon it in the only manner upon which they can act safely, effectively and wisely on such a subject, by assembling in Convention. It is true, they assembled in their several States—and where else should they have assembled? No political dreamer was ever wild enough to think of breaking down the lines which separate the States, and of compounding the American people into one common mass. Of consequence, when they act, they act in their States. But the measures they adopt do not, on that account, cease to be measures of the people themselves, or become measures of the State governments. * * * To the formation of a league, such as was the Confederation, the States were certainly competent. But when, "in order to form a more perfect union," it was deemed necessary to change this alliance into an effective Government, possessing great and sovereign powers, and acting directly on the people, the necessity of referring it directly to the people, and of deriving its powers directly from them, was felt and acknowledged by all. The Government of the Union, then, is emphatically and truly a Government of the people. In form and in substance it emanates from them. Its powers are granted by them, and are to be exercised directly on them, and for their benefit.

The National Supreme Court, which is a good authority in this country, quite as good at any rate as the Herald and Alexander H. Stephens, informs us, then, that the people made this Government, and that it is not the creature of the States. In Gen. Jackson's proclamation against the South Carolina nullifiers, the same doctrine is set forth even more strongly.

The Constitution of the United States forms a Government, not a league. It is a Government in which all the people are are represented, which operates directly on the people individually, not upon the States. The States severally have not retained their entire sovereignty. Each State having expressly parted with so many powers as to constitute jointly with the other States, a single nation, cannot from that moment possess any right to secede, because such secession does not break a league, but destroys the unity of a nation.

These discussions seem to be very antiquated and even superfluous since the war has so triumphantly vindicated our nationality. But we reproduce them to give the editor of the Herald and the Oregon Democracy generally who are just now feasting upon Alexander H. Stephens' book, some little points to ponder upon.

Supply of Gold and Silver.

A writer in the New York Times makes these statements:

The supply of precious metals from America, which had begun in 1600, reached its culminating point about 1810, after which it rapidly declined till the discovery of the California mines. In fact, the whole annual production of precious metals was only about twenty millions.

The remarkable fact in coin production in 1850 was that four fifths of it was in silver. It was the discovery of the California mines which changed that fact. The relations of silver and gold began immediately to change, and the result was a most extraordinary. In 1848, gold was to silver as eight to one.

It was an astonishing result, yet such was the force of commercial habit, that in 1852 silver and gold were still exchangeable values, the former estimated to the latter, and now there is no legal difference. Commerce has been the American supply of gold that in 1848 the annual supply was 14 per cent above the high est mark reached since the Christian era! Now, what has fact and law yourself whether the [illegible] is from remunerative? So far from [illegible] is probably not a staple product in this country which, since 1848, has changed its value as much as gold. Iron, therefore, also [illegible] a fixed standard [illegible].

It was soon asserted by the journals of that [illegible] larger population of foreign born in [illegible] of the natural [illegible] Germans are most numerous, the Irish next and the Norwegians third in point of numbers. There are also a great many English, Dutch, Belgians, Scotch and Bohemians in that State.

A Yankee who was traveling out West, was obliged to stay over night at a hotel of doubtful repute in a border town, where bar room fights were the staple amusements. During the night he might be heard considerable disturbance, and in the morning, on going down, found the landlord sweeping up what he supposed were grapes. He said to him: "You have pretty large grapes out here." "Grapes! grapes!" said the landlord, "them's eyes that were gouged out here last night."

The Boston Traveller tells a good story of Jas. Fisk Jr. "Some weeks ago he was on board the steamer Providence during a terrific gale. The steamer put back to Bristol. As soon as she reached the pier, Fisk remarked to a number of friends that he had expected the boat to go down in five minutes, and that, pending the fatal disaster, he thought of every mean trick that Jim Fisk ever did in his life. 'Well, and one of the party, 'you must have thought mighty quick.'"

OCCIDENTAL LINE OF STEAMERS.—A private letter from San Francisco says that a strong and well regulated Steamship company was formed in that city for the purpose of running a line of steamers regularly between San Francisco and Portland. The steamers are known to be suitable for the Oregon trade and are noted for good speed and splendid passenger accommodation. The people of Oregon will have an opportunity of showing whether they are willing to patronize good and staunch steamers, at a reasonable price for freight and passage, as it will depend on the patronage these steamers will receive whether they will remain in our waters or not.
